

Vision of Antichrist Upon a Throne 8-29-24@12:45 PM

"Lord, I see the man of sin sitting on his gold throne. I see him clearing. Except this time he's in an expensive light grey suit. His face is slightly shadowed. But I can see clearly who he is." "Yes daughter." "The shadowing is mostly under his eyes like half moons. Otherwise his face, his whole body is in the light." "This is because daughter his time to fully arise and be exposed has come."

"He has a dark, deep brooding look on his face and his eyes are looking straight forward. This is the same red and gold throne I have repeatedly seen him sitting in. His arms are extended resting on the throne's arm rests. His hands are curving around the end of the arm rests. Now his suit looks dark in color, possibly dark navy or black. His shirt is still white and his tie is a plain red but still expensive I can tell. There seems to be nothing or noone around him. It's a lone room with only one light. But again there's only a small amount of shadows noticeable under his eyes. Otherwise the light upon him allows him to be clearly seen. That's all that's in the shadows."

"You have deduced correctly, daughter. The lawless one, the man of sin's time to be fully revealed and fully seen is almost here. It won't be long before his face is no longer hidden by any shadows My daughter." "Then what happens Jesus Christ?" I still see him sitting in the gaudy throne looking forward unmoving. He doesn't even blink his eyes. "I will show you My little one."

Now I see the light has increased directly on Antichrist's face. A door has now appeared to the right which would be his left where he's sitting. The room is still dark minus the light on Antichrist. So as the door opened a shaft of light appeared.

I see a smile begin forming on Antichrist's face although he's still unmoving and looking straight forward. "Sir it's your time," I hear someone, a man's voice say from the other side of the door. Antichrist turns his head in the direction of the open door and smiles bigger.

"Finally," I heard him say. As he yelled back to the open door in reply to the man's voice, "Tell the world I'm coming." As he stood up he strained to suit jacket, his tie then the cause of his white sleeve shirt. He turns and starts walking toward the open door and now it's gone.

"Jesus Christ it's gone." "Yes daughter, you have seen what you needed to know. Only a few shadows remain upon his face until his true identity shall be known. First among My children and lastly the rest of the world. By then it will be too late and evidently seen."
